You use layers to combine parts of images, create new images, or move and resize elements. When you import an image, it is, essentially, turned into a PSD file that contains layers. Chapter 3 has an in-depth discussion of the different elements of a Photoshop file. The basic layers in a Photoshop document are the following: * **Layer0:** This is the **Main** layer. All the changes you make to the image appear on the Main layer. You can leave it blank if you like. * **Layer1:** A background. This is the layer that contains the original photo, whether it's a photo in a saved file or an image you import from the library. * **Layer2:** The foreground image. It may be new or an image from a library. * **Layer3:** Any adjustments that you make to the layer, such as brightness and contrast. * **Layer4:** Any new background information such as clouds or sky. You can move, or _duplicate_, layers in a document by using the Move tool (the arrow icon on the Move toolbar) or by holding down the Ctrl key and then clicking and dragging the layer. You can move a layer to a different document as long as that document contains the layer. This is useful if you want to work on multiple images at one time. You can hide, or _lock_, a layer so you can edit and paint on only that layer. Lock layers so that they don't show up in the image window. An easy way to duplicate layers is to use the Ctrl+D key combination, which creates a duplicate layer. You can then edit and create multiple versions of the duplicate layer in a separate document or in the same document. You can combine two layers into a new layer if they are

Rib fractures in adults: etiology and consequences. Rib fractures are a frequent emergency presentation. The acute symptoms are generally mild, and there are many related to the nonspecific evaluation. Most patients with rib fractures do not receive a chest radiograph, but the major consequence is that 2.8 million Americans receive an additional 4.1 million unnecessary radiological studies. The purpose of this article is to provide an update on rib fractures. I have covered the following areas: prevalence in various patient groups, etiology, risk factors, soft tissue complications, and treatment.Q: Make last record in query I got the following code: SELECT * FROM table1 LEFT OUTER JOIN table2 ON table1.table1_id = table2.table2_id WHERE table2.table2_id IS NULL ORDER BY table2.table2_id DESC LIMIT 0, 2 What this returns is a list of records from table1 and, for each record, a corresponding record from table2. However, what I need is a list of records, for each of them, from the last record (that is the second last record) of table2 - if there are less than 2, just the second last record and the previous. So, records should be ordered by table2.table2_id, then table2.table2_id from the last to the second last record and then from the second last to the first one (see the image).. Is it possible to have the last record for each table? A: SELECT t1.* FROM table1 t1 JOIN (SELECT t2.table2_id, MAX(t2.table2_id) AS max_id FROM table2 t2 GROUP BY t2.table2_id) t2 ON t1.table1_id = t2.table2_id WHERE t2.max_id = 2; A man was arrested at a home in North Seattle last week.
