There are many different ways to accomplish the things we need to do in our lives, but it can be a challenge choosing the one that's right for you. Today's episode is part of the series "The Art of Doing." It's a call to action to be more intentional in how we structure our days, our weeks, our months, and our years. As you listen to this episode, keep in mind the following principles. 1. Purpose first - How do you plan your day? Do you dedicate time to an important project or do you let your life proceed at the whim of the moment? If you haven't yet set the intention for the day, there's no time to procrastinate. 2. Set a structure - You're a pro at reading a chapter in a book or a card in a deck of cards. When you do this daily, you have an inherent sense of the right rhythm to the task and how many chapters or cards you'll do. I can't say it more plainly, if you don't set a structure, you won't follow through. 3. Read a chapter - Think of reading an entire book in one sitting. You could set yourself a minimum reading time or a maximum number of pages. The number of pages will provide a sense of satisfaction and accomplishment. 4. Don't overcomplicate - Start with one habit that can have a direct impact on the overall outcome of your day. And, if you can start a new habit, do it and keep at it.
