Chess was first fully-fledged national sport in Georgia. There were up to seven (and sometimes more) national championships per year in the decades following 1945. These included the Classical Chess Championship (Oseni), the Team Championship (Merani) and the Rapid/ Blitz Championship (Merani). The final rounds of all championships were held in Tbilisi (1958-1973) or Kaspiashvili (1974-1985). Due to the fact that most Georgian champions were teenage boys, it is often assumed that the 'Golden Age' of Georgian Chess was the 1950s. However, this is not the case: the best players in Georgia were active throughout the entire time between World War I and the dissolution of the Soviet Union. There were also some key players who rose to fame at later stages of their chess careers. The most successful period for Georgia's Championship saw the following: The Classical Chess Championship (Oseni): 1955, 1956, 1958, 1963, 1964, 1966, 1970, 1973, 1975, 1976, 1977, 1978, 1979, 1980, 1982, 1983, 1984, 1985; The Team Championship (Merani): 1956, 1957, 1958, 1960, 1962, 1967, 1968, 1971, 1974, 1976, 1977, 1979, 1980, 1981, 1982, 1983, 1985; The Rapid/ Blitz Championship (Merani): 1955, 1956, 1960, 1961, 1962, 1963, 1964, 1965, 1967, 1969, 1970, 1971, 1972, 1975, 1976, 1978, 1981, 1982, 1983, 1984, 1985. Chess was at its peak of popularity during the Soviet era. Each club had their own team composed of their strongest players. Similarly, it was more common for players of all ages to compete together in a club. At club level, Georgian Chess was unique in that the older generation of players often came second to their juniors. In fact, when the championship was not a GM tournament, the very best players in Georgia would often play for the local junior teams! Soviet chess was not played with the wide-spread use of the computer. Chess engines used only those calculations that were theoretically possible and there was no use of a drawing table. The game speed was much slower compared to today's world chess speeds. This means that certain moves cannot be considered. Chess websites can produce the correct analysis in less than a second! Chess websites can also produce the computer-check analysis in less than 1 second!

The Game Features Monologue Playing Cards Driving Battle Jumping Missions Leveling Up Leveling System Evolution of Weapon Upgrades Unlock levels by killing enemies! Good Skill at one class unlocks a new class! Enemies You will see enemies at most of the levels. There are no tutorials. Help will not be provided. This is a tough game. There is no way to talk to other players. The guide for the game is below. How to Play: Tap the screen to turn on the app and your car. Tap a location to start. If it's a battle, you'll battle an enemy that's chasing you. If you fight an enemy, you'll gain experience points. Fight an enemy, drive to the enemy, then shoot your weapon. Shoot the enemy. It will then be trapped. After battle, your vehicle will damage and you'll have to repair. If you are in an arena, you'll be competing against another player in a duel. You'll earn credits by winning a duel. If you run out of money, you'll lose! The game has 24 levels, including the single player mode. You can challenge a friend to play the game over an Internet connection. In the single player mode, you can choose between three difficulty levels. Every time you finish the single player, you'll earn coins. I've pretty much made all the levels. I will keep adding, even after the game is released. If you find something that I missed in the game, please email it to me. Any tips or suggestions are welcome. Thank you! Game Location: Thank you for playing! :D If you want to play something else, have a look at the next game: Created by: Jeff Fung - Blasterator Productions - Gwent The Witcher Card Game In The Witcher 3 Finally Made Its Way To The Switch Check out this first look at Gwent The Witcher card game in action. ## What's new:

, my foot! That's what he called it! What does he know?" "Exactly." "And our good Captain too," moaned Winter. "Well, I had time to make up my mind, I took myself along to the boys while he was praying and bemoaned my lot. Then I bent to bite my nails along with the twins who are not yet eight years old. As you know, their father is a womanizing ass and fancies himself a rascal. Oh, I'm not making fun of him, neither am I slandering him or denigrating him, I'm just recalling whatever I heard, what I said or did not say, that is, as a malicious sinner." He sighed. "But I'm done with gossiping. I went to the boys' quarters to fetch their best shirts. I also told them I was headed over to the captain's and asked them to patch one of our sails, in fact I whipped out my knife and said I would set it to your throat." "You didn't!" "Of course I did. They've known me for years and I was quite prepared to get the sail patch set to me myself. If you've known me a few years, as well, you'll understand that I was under the influence of strong passions and the poor wretched Captain wasn't taking me seriously enough—the wedding was coming up and he had all sorts of doubts as to whether I'd be a loyal wife. 'When in the Devil's name am I going to get married?' I heard him say, and I stood there, here in my cell, in the thick of a holy silence and replied, 'Before all Hell is burning. If that's what it takes to find you a way to answer my Lord.' While you were in the Holy Firmament, Father, I was trying to be a good Catholic, by the waters of this stream and in the green expanse of this mountaintop, for as far as the eye can see. And here I am." He smiled a smile full of fierceness, a glare of an unwise and indelicate nature. And in his awful countenance, that expression of his, I once again found myself struck by how his face, already lined, age-spotted, marked with a few stretch marks, a few wrinkles, pockmarks on that rough forehead, served to utter such an inexhaustible number of words at

ION ASSAULT is a 3D shoot 'em up, where you play as a man with a vision. He's trying to make a brave new world by destroying the obstacles that stand in his way: asteroids. Enjoy the following key features:

- TACTICAL THRILL: With thousands of Ion Particles, destroy enemy obstacles and collect power ups in order to progress through different game levels!
- INNOVATIVE SCORING: Every level can be mastered in a variety of different ways, utilizing the game's unique level design. Use power ups to boost your score, or use luck to annihilate everything in sight!
- ULTIMATE SHOOT'EM UP EXPERIENCE: Challenge yourself with our super-packed leaderboard of some of the best scores in the history of SHOOT'EM UP!

Storyline: You are a man with a vision. You come from another world where you have to destroy the obstacles that stand in your way. You fly through space, throwing the obstacles, that stand in your way off the screen... or worse, right on top of you. But that would be a shame since there are so many obstacles out there that would stop you from reaching your goal. However, you are always outnumbered. Since there are billions of asteroids in the universe, they will try to stop you from reaching the grand total of infinity.
