“HyperMotion Technology” brings a more complete immersion for players inside their game, with an improved player model and detailed virtual environments. Players also have a more fluid motion system, with new grappling, changes to sprinting, accelerated ball physics and a boost to ball control when players are close to each other. New player sprint animations and improvements to aerial duels and goal kicks bring an even more refined sense of motion. Two-player matches will now be a more tactical experience. You can now make more precise dribble controls to turn your opponent and cut inside him or her using improved ball physics. You can also anticipate moves and cut inside to score a chance or even a goal. In addition to the accuracy of player movement animations, the speed of animations also makes a difference. You can now make precise dribble moves and create more complete combination plays. New animation work on aerial and other passes makes it possible to recreate a more natural pass form. As with other FIFA titles, FIFA 22 has a variety of innovative touches. Tactical Defending is now even easier with the new Defensive AI system, which makes defending more rewarding as it reacts more to what the opponent is doing. In addition to new Tactical Defending tutorials, you can now tap on passing lane lines to look at players beyond the pitch. “FIFA 22” introduces HyperMotion Technology, which brings a more complete immersion for players inside their game with an improved player model, detailed virtual environments and fluid motion. The game also features an expanded Real Player Motion system for all on-pitch and off-pitch actions. FIFA 22 also features a wider array of worldwide leagues, including the UEFA Champions League.
