"I've been working on FIFA for a long time, and one of the biggest challenges for us was to give more freedom to the players without introducing a large number of control schemes. With the new player behaviour system, we were able to create a more natural, responsive simulation," said David Rutter, FIFA's gameplay programmer. "The addition of player tracking and acceleration allows us to create intelligent AI, and we've added collision detection and moments of physics that create compelling behaviours. In fact, they are almost always countered by the intelligent AI so the players need to be clever!" This is the first time that augmented reality has been used to enhance the presentation of the FIFA series, and represents a significant enhancement in the use of the FIFA World Cup trophy. A 5.1 surround sound environment based on the new voice from Matthias Endepolski, commentator for the 2016 FIFA World Cup, is available for players. In addition, FIFA 22 has an all new soundtrack created by Norbert Reithofer, head of the Bundesliga, with a total of 10 songs written by André Manoukian, Björn Engelmann and Olivier Ossendriest. The soundtrack features the same new direction that the teams' positions have taken in the most recent FIFA titles, taking the music into an electric, industrial heart. The introduction of a new trailer at E3 2016 was followed by a teaser at the Cinema in Cologne at the FIFA Ultimate Team Fan Appreciation event. Features at a glance: Augmented Reality FIFA World Cup trophy and 2016 FIFA World Cup commentators Matthias Endepolski and Alexander Meier, plus six commentators from various events, are included. Players will have the opportunity to use the tournament trophy with their squad in a number of ways, from holding it over challenges, to even using it in a celebratory manner if they win their final match. New FIFA World Cup World Soundtrack with 10 songs written by André Manoukian, Björn Engelmann and Olivier Ossendriest. Play the song "Football Nation" by Andreas Delfs at the YouTube Trailer page. Match Day Experience In-game clubs are a huge part of the FIFA World Cup and players can further customise their clubs' activity patterns in many different ways. New "Match Day Experience" system allows players to scan the stadium

New ball physics system - with various surface conditions and weather, where the ball behaves more realistically, and a new ball control system that adds greater realism to passing and shooting. New pitch lines, crowd behaviour and stadium features also bring a new level of detail to the game.
- Thanks to the second-year acquisition of Creative Assembly Studios from other EA company, new studio Creative Assembly has launched numerous new features, including the creation of unique leagues and clubs, as well as playing styles and tactics."
- Lucha Libre Show.
- Leaderboard competitions
- Create-a-Club tool
- Realism. Football is the most complex game on earth, and we wanted to take the time we had to create more believable players and more realistic game play.
- Realism. Career Mode makes you the manager of your team. Your ability to control your squad's game day-to-day running is all important. If you don't want to go out and practice, then in career mode you don't get to do that.
- FIFAism. We've also made football more fun to watch while still remaining true to the core features of the sport.
- New Passing. With New Passing, pass options are simpler to pick up - for instance, if you perform the pass through the defender, the player heading up to receive the pass will receive a strong run-in, increasing his chances of scoring.
- Natural dribbling. Counter-attacks and direct play are an important part of scoring goals in the game and this year we've dialed that in even more, making it more rewarding to dribble past a defender.
