To assess the feasibility of interposition grafting of the common carotid artery and the internal carotid artery. In a series of 32 patients treated for restenosis and occlusion of the internal carotid artery a new stent graft with a high-low bifurcated configuration was used. The stent grafts were successfully deployed in all cases, providing a good flow into the internal carotid artery and common carotid artery. There were no perioperative or late re-occlusion or dislocation of the stent graft thrombosis or occlusion has been observed. Internal carotid artery occlusions and restenoses treated by endovascular stent graft implantation are now an effective therapeutic option. In our experience, interposition grafting is the treatment of choice in patients with restenosis and occlusion of the internal carotid artery. "A shift in the weather pattern of epic proportions and rapid development occurs that will begin to shift the climate of the world on a scale far beyond anything ever before experienced." by Jim Lovelock What happened to the sun? "The solar system is passing through a gravitational solar maximum --- a period when the Sun reaches a maximum power output. At this point the Sun will consume all the hydrogen from the surface of the Earth. "This would be true no matter what the Sun's heat output, because at some point the Sun
