What's new:

is an internet-based mailing list for discussion of the Newfie subculture in sports (especially hockey). A diverse list, both in geographic region and team sport loyalty. Post by Jbick on Jun 15, 2004 15:57:23 GMT -5 As promised, here's the first draft. I figure we can incorporate any constructive and (mostly) non-discriminatory input, as we go. I'm willing to help play The Message Guard or listen to other folks' messages if we get too intense. Any criticisms of the format, especially if they are constructive, are also welcome. This will keep us all rested and diverted from all this aupair craziness, lol! Something about the messianic, Christian image most Newfoundlanders and Loyalists have of the N.W.T. and "the P.E.I. Connection"... so, there goes that idea, amazon.ca anyone? I'd still have to employ someone to censor individual messages, but that's a non-issue and the last thing I want to do. I would have to say that the N.W.T.-related image more closely resembles the political campaign here, where you continually hear "the Liberals are best", and "the Tories are the real hockey fans". This looks like it could evolve into a very nasty experience, with a lot of whatever that would be described as "attacking" someone personally, and always taking the "Newfie is right", and "P.E.I. is cheating" tack...!! P.E.I. Hockey Fans: are you all amazon.ca and participating in the discussion? I don't see a lot of activity here, except for a couple of messages. Intro We're entering a provincially-organized tournament between the three northern N.W.T. provinces and P.E.I. There will be regular play during the tournament. The Divisions will be played in the order the ranking companies are on the Newfie Hockey Association's league ranking. The current order is: Teams in the same division play each other twice, once at home and once on the road, for four regular season games, a full schedule. They play a full championship series consisting of four games, also once home and once away. The standings are then re-adjusted to give an advantage to the higher ranked team that can complete a double-game

The History Our Founder and Lead Game Designer, René Marasigan, grew up in a small town in Mexico and moved to the United States in 2001 where he went on to pursue a Bachelor of Science in Game Design. After working on a number of popular PC titles at Image & Form Games and focusing primarily on training developers and artists, he began developing his first PC title, Broken Sword: The Angel of Murder. This was the start of a long journey with a variety of titles on many platforms where he continued to polish and fine-tune his skills. Broken Sword: The Serpent's Curse was released in 2007 to acclaim from gamers across the world and was followed by Broken Sword: The Smoking Mirror in 2010. In 2011 he established a partnership with European developer Hidden Path Entertainment. After their previous success they were looking to develop an Xbox 360 game and approached René and Hidden Path to make the next Broken Sword game. At the time Broken Sword: The Swindle was in the middle of being developed. Based on previous experience it was a perfect fit for Hidden Path and they quickly began work on the game. When the development of the Xbox 360 was delayed, the team quickly made the decision to move to the Wii. The studio was called 5th Cell Productions and for the next 2 years they worked on the Wii version of Maiden's Vow. When this console platform had also been delayed, the team of developers from 5th Cell made the move to the Xbox 360 version of Maiden's Vow. With the Xbox 360 version of Maiden's Vow looking to be getting to release in late 2011, the development team from 5th Cell decided they wanted to move on
