I'm curious if your problem has been fixed, since it was down for quite a while, and I'm still using your theme, so it may have just been my ISP having trouble keeping up. Anyway, what I like about the new theme is that it gives you more flexibility with the colors of the front page title and picture, so you can do it manually, or use a color picker. Otherwise, I like it and the updates, but I have a quibble, and that's that I'd like the title to be a bit larger, but that may be just me. Re: "stuck too" Hey, sorry about that! The development of robust methods for the clinical assessment of the five-factor model of personality: the Big Five Inventory. This study examined the measurement invariance of the Five-Factor Model (FFM) personality traits across eight diverse samples. Multiple indices of measurement invariance were assessed, including configural, strong measurement invariance, and strict and partial scalar invariance. Subscales from the short Big Five Inventory (BFI) showed best convergent and discriminant validity with respect to the full 30-item BFI. In total, a strong and strict configural and partial scalar invariance model fit the data from eight samples. However, configural invariance was not supported, suggesting that observed relationships among BFI subscales are due in part to observed relationships among the subscales within samples. It is this representation that has made them candidates for the medical field and so they are not just doctors, but ethicists, lawyers, administrators, and college graduates. To each of these, there are jobs that need to be done, but they are unlikely to be the ones that get done. What is the End of a Dictatorship I recently had the opportunity to sit in on a discussion between two Ph.D. candidates in the area of work and job stress. One of the participants in this discussion was a young, balding man with glasses whose job was to design and implement health insurance plans for large companies. These companies ranged from Fortune 100 to Fortune 50 to Fortune 500. Another participant was a woman who had done graduate work in international health and who worked for a pharmaceutical company developing new drugs for HIV patients. Her job was to convince drug companies to manufacture and market these new drugs. After the
