Infra is a thought-provoking, high-resolution puzzle game about exploring a large world-like-Jurassic Park. Infra is a highly artistic game that blends the challenging, survival aspects of the genre with the magical adventure of Lucasarts' Flight of the Navigator. Play as one of a number of alternate character themes, each with their own unique abilities. Infra is is designed with the player in mind to create the best experience. The gameplay and narrative are intertwined, allowing players to make choices which affect the way the story unfolds. Your decisions and choices will have a lasting impact on the world you explore. How do you get there? Well, let's start by talking about the camera. Infra is a smartly designed exploration puzzle that expands the genre in interesting ways. Your character is not content to simply walk around; every area has a way of interacting with you as you explore; things have to be examined, touched, bumped, and pressed to find their true potential. As your exploration continues you are tasked with finding things that help you on your quest. Objects that you collect around the world can be read and interpreted in new and interesting ways, and added to puzzles. You start out with a variety of devices, and the experience is then based on how you use them. Infra is a clever puzzle/walking simulator that blends themes of classic puzzle solving with the challenge of locating and finding key elements of your growing world. With new tools appearing and disappearing as you progress, the difficulty of the puzzles doesn't jump up until the most-critical areas. The characters and story are well-considered, the environments are detailed and beautiful, and the puzzles truly are always more than one solution. Seasteading best use for technology to open new frontiers Building a separate island in the middle of the ocean is not a new idea, but the company that's developing the idea has raised money and attracted some well-known "rioters" to its cause. 0shares If you listened to my radio show last week, you heard me talk about a new and somewhat controversial idea: the planet needs new frontiers. Based on numerous creative solutions for humanity's demand for fresh challenges, the new frontier has turned out to be geoengineering -- fiddling with the earth's biochemistry, in the name of development and ecology. But therein lies the greatest danger: The potential for technologies like geoengineering to create greater inequality, with power in the hands of a small group, already arguably the richest of any society in history. One solution is to move beyond governance by politics and look into governance by the community of citizens. While it's not new in practice, the concept of seasteading is new in methodology and governance. I've always been entranced by those who live where their subsistence needs are met from the prevailing environment. From Seneca Falls, Ohio, where Palgrave's dairy was founded in the 19th century, through Joffreville, France, where a commune formed in the mid-20th century, all the way to a proposal to bring an independent American community to the Caribbean. The Caribbean nation-states have moved toward tighter immigration laws, leaving narrow loopholes and simply leaving their citizens weary of giving up privacy and civil liberties for the sake of accepting new

About This Game: Since the release of the highly successful and critically acclaimed FTL a little more than a year ago, Eric Chu has become something of a gaming industry superstar. When FTL "made it" it was a combination of everything he had hoped it would be and it was one of those rare moments where a game not only was "everything" that he had wanted, but was also "great" at doing so, such that it quickly went on to become a'staple' for the FTL fan base. Over the past year, he has been working, steadily on a number of different projects with a great deal of fanfare. Now that he is finally ready to reveal his latest c9d1549cdd

(album) It's On You is the debut studio album by American rapper Big Boi from OutKast. He previously contributed three songs to the 2002 OutKast soundtrack, "Brick House", "Speakerbox" and "Easy". It's On You debuted at number eight on the Billboard 200, selling 118,000 copies in its first week, on top of 87,000 copies from "Speakerbox", making It's On You the biggest selling album by OutKast up to that point. It's On You also topped the Billboard 200 for one of the longest periods in nearly two decades. At the time of its release, It's On You was regarded as a return to the hip hop sound found on Radio Flyer. A commercial and critical success, in May, 2003 the album was certified Platinum by the Recording Industry Association of America for shipments in excess of 1,000,000 units in the United States and awarded a double platinum certification in Canada. In 2004, It's On You won the Grammy Award for Best Rap Album, while "Brick House" and "Pocket Full of Smoke" were awarded a Grammy Award for Best Rap Performance by a Duo or Group. Three of its singles became top 20 hits on the Billboard Hot 100: "Brick House" at number nine, "On Some Real Shit" at number 17 and "Whine Up" at number five. It's On You has sold 844,000 copies in the United States as of March 2011. Recording and production After the release of OutKast's second album, Aquemini (2000), label boss LaFace record executive, Clive Davis, took an interest in the duo, but was discouraged by Dr. Dre, OutKast and their management, due to Dre's preference for solo projects and solo albums. He then offered Andre 3000 control over the production of his debut album and allowed him to sign with Geffen Records. It's On You was recorded in Los Angeles between 2001 and 2002. Music and lyrics It's On You, Inception: Music for the Film, composed by

Goodie Mob/OutKast member Big Boi and producer Warren "Oak" Felder and featured All City Choir, is an instrumental composition and one of the first collaborations between Big Boi and Oak. The album also includes collaborations from Bad Brains singer, Darryl Jenifer and rapper, Serani. The album features many samples and interpolation from various African influences
