Android ListView does not refresh after screen rotation I've got an Android app that uses a ListView to display the result of a query. The data in the ListView is fetched from the server and displayed asynchronously. The app works fine as long as the screen remains in portrait mode (the data is shown in landscape mode), but if I rotate the screen to landscape mode, the data is not displayed on the phone. I found that the problem occurs because the ListView is instantiated/populated the first time a request is made when the app is in portrait mode. The data is only displayed after a second request is made when the app is in landscape mode. The data request code can be seen below: private class GetDataCallback extends AsyncTask< @Override protected void onPreExecute() { super.onPreExecute(); } @Override protected List doInBackground(String... params) { String results = "null"; if (params.length > 0) results = params[0]; return jsonService.makeGetDataResponse(results);
