your system more by disabling password in your HKEY_LOCAL_MACHINE\SOFTWARE\Microsoft\Windows\CurrentVersion\policies\system\EnableLUA, so you cannot launch some LUA-based apps. Also, to prevent this type of trick, I believe it is better to use an anti-virus to scan your PC, check previous LUA apps if they have been changed. Good luck! Edit Sorry, I just realized the problem is in the new update (RC1) of CS:GO. While the new update still works very well, an app called DexDrive (of which I did not know) still causes the same error. From the description on DexDrive's website, DexDrive is an awesome and funny driver, I mean, you can search it through web! This "DexDrive" is an auto-launcher, I mean, you just need to download it, then, it will automatically launch at start up! Download and use it today! So, I am sure the DexDrive triggers the 0x00B error. On my Steam, I have the same situation. So I can only use most of the games. But the other games, I don't even have this problem. If you are the only one who want to use the game, I suggest you don't play it. And, only stick to CS:GO or the version from steam before the update RC1. Hope
