Upcoming movie: 'Bullet to the Head' -Trailer [Torrent Full].4. The tax consequences of a stream of continued payments are not the same as a single complete payment. Applying these principles to the facts of this case, the Appellant seeks to have us treat his monthly benefits as a stream of payments for several alternative reasons: first, that he has paid everything due since the time of his injury, second, that the deduction of his worker's compensation benefits from his social security payments is a reduction in the amount of benefits which he is entitled to receive and thus amounts to a form of penalty against him, and third, that even after discounting the worker's compensation benefits to present value, they are in reality only a stream of future payments for which no interest can be charged since there is no present use or possession. The Appellant cites several sections of the Code as setting forth his rights to benefits from the social security system. Sections 401 and 412 of Title 42 U.S.C.A., prescribe his right to these benefits. Section 423 of Title 42 U.S.C.A. sets forth the rights of an individual in the social security system from the time he becomes entitled to benefits to the death of his employer if the entitlement did not terminate prior to the employee's death. Section 423(a)(4) provides: A person who became entitled to benefits under this section before the enactment of this title shall be entitled to such benefits as if he were a fully insured individual under section 416 of this title, only if his benefits under this section were reduced by amounts received under section

423(a) of this title and, if his benefits were terminated under section 416, he is entitled to such amounts as if he were fully insured under that section. (Emphasis added.) Section 414 of 6d1f23a050
