Remington Golden Saber So I was at a gun show in Florida when I picked up this Remington Golden Saber. It's a 4.5x12. The bore looks clean and there was a little soft pink powder in the barrel. The stock looks pretty good and it's a straight pull bolt action. I have no idea how old this thing is but it's in pretty good shape. I have no idea how much it would be worth but it looks like a lot to me. Did the Remington Golden Saber put out any scopes? Pics: Originally Posted by ktaylor25 If any one has any knowledge about this firearm could you please PM me. I have a Remington Golden Saber that looks much the same except the stock is a part of the action. The stock isn't even attached to the receiver but it's a straight pull bolt action. The barrel has a nice pinkish tint on it but it isn't all the way through. You see the rifling for the chamber in the cap and rear of the barrel. I have no idea how old this is or what the true value is but it seems to be mostly complete and it's been in a gun safe since a kid had it. I can't seem to get the image to display correctly. I will try again when I get home in a little bit.Q: Is it possible to use _atom_property_subscriptions with clojure.lang.PersistentArrayMap? Does anyone know if it is possible to use atom
